Space Peace Charter

All countries should sign it showing maturity and humanity

- Space exploration should be regulated
- peace as the respect for human values should be the basic law to apply to Space exploration
- everything possible should be done to prevent Space from becoming a new battlefield for competing countries or individuals
- no part of Space or any part of a planet or a planet as such should be claimed by any single country or an individual
- Space exploration should be supervised by an independent agency called the Space Peace Agency or SPA. It should represent all nations in a democratic way. All member countries should agree to the Space Peace Charter
- proceeds from Space exploration - after deducting exploration costs - are to be transferred to the Space Peace Fund to finance projects aimed at peace in all its forms on planet Earth
- Space exploration should not be seen as a way to strengthen the power or domination of one country or a group of countries in particular
- Space exploration should be a means to enhance the well-being of Earth's population as a whole, as well as to restore Nature and to repair damage inflicted on it
- Space exploration should not aim at bringing raw materials to Earth that damage its population and/or Nature
- Space exploration should not aim at continuing processes on Earth that are damaging to its population and/or Nature
- Space exploration requires Humankind to show maturity. Maturity is the respect of human values. Solidarity is a priority value. Solidarity is the only way to peace and justice in a world with a sustainable future

- the Space Peace Fund should finance projects aimed at solving Earth's problems on a worldwide scale: poverty, Nature degradation, low appreciation of human values, crime, war, conflicts...
- the Space Peace Fund should finance and foster research and development into Earth's problems and it should bring together the brightest minds in a joint effort of world solidarity - with people and with Nature
- the Space Peace Fund should finance the development of clean and renewable sources of energy to the benefit of all countries
- the Space Peace Fund should finance a worldwide large-scale campaign to promote human values and especially solidarity among nations and people
- the Space Peace Fund should finance research into how to enhance the well-being of people without damaging Nature and making people into semi-automated producers and consumers
- Space is to be kept free of weapons unless they are needed to defend Humankind against possible aggressive aliens
- if Humankind encounters aliens, all should be done to try and establish dialogue and cooperation
- Space is a place Humankind can never expect to fully understand. It should be respected and not be treated with neglect and arrogance
- Space offers no quick solution to Humankind's problems. Yet, the best and only option towards a better and more just future is the joint effort of all nations and peoples to show the best of Humankind: launching the biggest solidarity campaign ever and not making Space into a new battlefield.
